“ June 1970 I joined friends at the Walker farm to pick watermelons. I met Mr. Walker for the first time with a question? When do we start? His answer I have repeated many times, he said son we start picking watermelons when the dew dries, and we don't stop until we can not see them. It gave me an appreciation to those who farm. TB and family so sorry for your loss.

“ Butler was a man of his word. If he told you something you could count on the plan working. I dealt with him on many times and we always enjoyed our dealings. the economy put us in some tough places, but we worked together for decent outcomes for both of us. May God Bless the family and remember the great legacy that Butler has left behind! Bump Faircloth
