“ Betty and Bevo were the examples to follow in the pharmacy world. We learned so much from both of them and will forever appreciate their kindness, honesty, integrity, and love for the profession for which they both gave so much. Thank you Betty.

“ Smart, determined, and as dedicated a wife and mother as ever there was. She had the courage to leave home and join the Navy in her teens. She married, raised children, saw a good bit of the world, and always remembered who she was and where she came from. Looked up to some but never down on anyone. Like many in the greatest generation, she never bragged or boasted, except occasionally on family members, and then only within the family. Fought the good fight and was sharp to the end. Betty: we'll miss you.
