“ Frank: I am saddened to learn of the death of your father. I moved away from Albany almost 50 years ago. Like Steve Clark, "Stevie", I remember you as "Frankie". I lived a few houses down on Lucile. As I recall, your father was an accomplished golfer. There were many trophies on the shelves in the workshop where we played table tennis. At some time in our adolescence, we decided to melt down one of his trophies. I still have a scar from that unwise decision. Your father never had a word of rebuke for our foolishness. Do you remember the Summer of '70 when we built those nasty "Goalsby Homes"? You and your family are very fortunate to have had such wonderful, good hearted, parents for so many years.

“ Dr. Walker, Sorry to here about your Dad's passing, I knew you as Frankie growing up in the old neighbor hood. I lived on Julia Street a house over from you. I remember the King Burger your Dad made famous . The best and largest. hamburger ever made. The shredded lettuce topping was very unique. Seems I remember your Dad was a world traveler and his collection from the countries he visited on display in your home on Benjamin . Steve Clark
