“ A year. I can't believe it's almost been a year since we lost such sparkle here on Earth. My heart still aches with each passing day. I keep hoping that I'll get a phone call, an email something telling me that this was all just a horrible dream. I see so much of you in me. I have started sewing and every time I sit at my machine all the memories of you doing the same start to flood my mind. I remember you staying up countless nights fixing dance costumes and making them from scratch. Such dedication to us in everything you did. Shea started guitar at a private studio at the most amazing farm. I felt your presence as I was marveled in the beauty of the animals and land. I know you led us there. Oh how I wish I could hug you again. Mom you are always in my heart.

“ They say time heals and makes things better. I don't know who “they” are, but they are wrong. Time changes nothing. All it does is makes me miss you more. Every single day something happens that I want to share with you and it absolutely causes my heart to hurt that I can't. I wish Shea got to spend more time with you and really know what an amazing grandma he had. He still talks about your cookies :) I've been bad about keeping up with the rest of the family because when I talk to them I think of you. Avoidance helps no one, but I still hurt. I feel like time was stolen from me. I thought I had more. I have many days that I'm angry for moving to Texas. If I stayed in Florida so many more memories could have been made. I understand the beyond and that death is something required for spiritual growth, but knowledge doesn't take away pain. I always think of you and miss you more with every minute of every day.

“ So, it's been a while since I visited here. Don't think that doesn't mean you're not in my thoughts. Everyday I think of you. This year for your birthday I went to this feed store by my house because they were having their Christmas open house. I walked in and gasped because to my right was a dress form that had an outfit that completely looked like something you'd wear. This form was your exact height as well. I turned back to say something to John who said I know she's here before I got any words out. Then I turned my head to the left and this feed store had the most beautiful boutique. It was as if I was walking through your closet. I knew you had to have been there with me. Because instead of feeling sad I felt a sense of peace and comfort. I love you so much Mom! I reach for my phone to call you weekly if not daily. It's hard not having you here to talk to, but I know you are safe and happy.

“ Mom I find myself here again thinking about you and your beautiful soul. I wish I could just pick up the phone and talk to you. I miss you more then I thought it was possible to miss anyone. I find myself sharing wonderful memories of you everyday. I was so fortunate to have you as my Mom. I just wanted to say I love you and you are always in my heart.

Qedrin Booth - September 15, 2019 at 06:15 PM

“ Mom it’s been another 2 days in a row where my heart just aches to be able to talk to you. I wish I could just pick up the phone and hear your beautiful voice. I think about you every single day. I put up reminders all over my house of you. This house that you picked out for us was such a gift. Knowing I bought the one you liked the best brings me comfort. I love you so much and a piece of my heart is with you always. You are always in my thoughts. I love you so much.

My amazing beautiful talented momma 💕 I'm very fortunate to have shared this time on Earth with her & looking forward to meeting up with her in the future 🌻 She taught us the most important lesson we could ever have UNCONDITIONAL LOVE 💕

“ Upon hearing of my mother's death, I immediately thought of life. Her life. The parts that I imagined from stories that I have been told. The family life prior to my arrival. The secrets that she had kept. Her dedication to her children. How when making a decision, it would always be for the greater good. Her hands. My mother's hands. I noticed with every flash of a memory, she sparkled! Each time I think of my mother, she is glowing. Her presence never went unnoticed.

*As I succumb to the swelling ache in my heart, it is being healed with the eternal gratitude that she was my mother. The teacher. Continue to shine bright Mimi ! Sending you SO MUCH LOVE, Namaste

“ Where to begin! Mimi was like a Grandmother to me. She would always wait for Tyne and I on her golf cart to get off the school bus. She would make us do homework, Then we would sit in the kitchen watching “Arthur” or “Dragon Tales”, she’d always have some delicious snack waiting on us! Baking goods, which she was amazing at! Or her famous “pecans” she’d make in different flavors. Her voice of yelling at Tyne was the best!! Playing slot machines as she just sat there and talked with us. Sitting on her front porch just talking. She always had a perfect smile on her beautiful face! I could keep going... may she Rest In Peace until we see each other again. You’ll be missed in the mean time by many. Much love sweet Mimi ❤️

“ Today was a very difficult day. I’m sure it will be the first of many. I was flooded with the NEED to talk to Mom. Just one more phone call, one more hug, one more ANYTHING. This pain is unlike any other I have ever felt or will feel. My heart is broken and a piece of me is missing. My mom was my dearest friend and as I grew and moved away it was phone calls that kept us close. I just wish there were more of them. Mom I love you so much more than words could ever explain. I miss you so much it hurts. I hope you are happy and know there is not a second of any day that I’m not thinking of you.

“ How would I ever find the words to pay tribute to my mother’s life? So, I sit quietly and search inwardly through the flood of memories. I remember my mother always having the ability to see things clearly, she was decisive and confident, proud and beautiful, funny and direct. My memories as a child of her were that of nurturing me and patiently teaching me. Memories as I grew were of her sharing her love of beauty, art & dance. Memories of our shopping together filled with giggles. Memories of our experiences we shared with other people. Memories of our family doing ordinary things. Memories of birthdays & holidays. Memories of her wit and sense of humor. I’ve been truly blessed to have had the gift of sharing many years with my mother. I will hold many of these memories next to my heart for comfort. I pay tribute to my mother by remembering her love and light.

“ My beloved grandmother is alive in memory and spirit
I know she is at peace with her struggling health. I will miss making any life accomplishments and not hearing her excitement or seeing her glistening white teeth from a smile that stretches from ear to ear. A part of me is gone forever and never will return. The matriarch of the family has passed forward to continue marching in her parade

“It’s been said that a mother’s heart is the child’s classroom. I thank God for all that my Mom, Mrs. Jo-Ann Theimer Jones, has taught me through the years, she is truly a gift to this world, she possessed a fiery spirit, was a savant on many subjects, had a heart of gold, and was a beautiful woman with whom I was fortunate enough to be able to call my mother. She is the portrait of a godly mother, and I’m proud to be her daughter.

I would like to share a few things I learned from my mother that helped to mold me into the woman I am today; and I hope that others can learn from my mom’s example and incorporate these same lessons in their life.

Mom taught me the importance of being spiritual and knowing yourself; being true to yourself and your faith is the most important lesson for a mother to teach her children.

Mom taught me how to endure anything, she told me and my siblings to never quit—no matter what. Growing up, we all had challenges, but through my mom’s example of endurance, we learned to keep going even in the hard times. Mom never magnified the tough times, she told us kids, “It’s when they stop talking about you that you need to start worrying.” A valuable lesson I resort to on a weekly basis.

I witnessed my Mom’s great love and pure devotion for my Dad. In their 62 years of marriage not once did I see them argue, their pure love for one another taught me that true love does exist and should be sought after. Being a witness to my Father’s gentle and caring spirit with her daily, taught me another important life lesson, you never give up on those you love and show them the greatest of patience and understanding.

Mom taught me to be faithful. I have tried to emulate her faithfulness the best way I know how. If I start anything, I strive to be faithful to complete it; if I give my word, I am faithful to keep it, Mom taught us to be faithful to our word.

Mom stayed at home to raise her children, when Dad would travel, Mom was responsible for many duties and decisions that that she had to make by herself, she always knew the best things to do in every situation; there is not a more practical decision maker. When any of us children have any major, or in some case minor, life decisions, Mom was always our first call.

Mom taught me the difference between right and wrong and taught me to make proper decisions. She also taught me about true unconditional love - a love that has influenced my life immeasurably.

My mother was graceful, charming, and a perfectionist in everything she did. Growing up with Mom was always an adventure in such a good way. Such a beautiful woman and so full of personality that she lit up a room like no other, everyone would immediately fall in love with her.

These are just a few of the things I have learned from my mom that I will continue to follow and pass on to my son so that we might all be lifted and strive to live such a fulfilling and perfect life like my Mother.
