“ There isn't enough space here to express what a special, sweet woman June was. From being a neighborly friend to the kind woman who drove my kids to school and picked them up so many times, there is no kinder person. We will miss seeing you on your horse and working on the property June but there is comfort in knowing we will meet again one day. Cooley Family

“ For my loving Sister In Law written by my cousin, Jerry Phillips a few years ago: Looking Over Me Looking Over You
I've been gone for a short while now and there is something you should know, I'm watching the pain you are feeling and I'm touched by your tears that flow, and on the days you come visit me, I wish you only knew, that while you stand looking over me, I'm looking over you. I'll come to you in the winter and watch you through the snowman's eyes but I'll stay for only awhile, then melt and say goodbye. Then I'll ride the wind at night and sing a song so true, the carol you hear outside your door is my present from me to you. I'll come to you again in the springtime, as a rainbow I'll show my face, I'll cast my colors on your home then fade with just a trace, and as a bloom I'll open up and brighten all your day, you'll place me in a vase inside so I can watch you play. I return again in the summer as your favorite bird of blue, I'll rest upon your window as I sing my love for you. For the garden that you tend I'll fill the clouds above, and rain upon the flowers below, the ones I know you love. Soon fall is upon us, as a leaf I'll float softly down, I'll brush your hair so gently, as I rest upon the ground. You'll pick me up with laughter and carry me inside, your day filled with love and joy, forgetting the day I died. So the next t time you come to visit me, remember you are not without a clue. While you stand looking over me, I'm also looking over you.

“ A lovely, kind and sweet lady who touched everyone she met. A life shortened by a terrible disease, but only God knows why and we must trust in him. Our loss is Heavens gain. Gerald Bailey
