“ Lance, I live in what used to be YOUR very first home when you came to Tallahassee. I think about you all the time when I'm walking around the house. Especially when my husband and I are repairing Or remodeling the home after you and your friends worked on it 20 yrs ago. It's hard to be here sometimes. Knowing that my family occupies what you used to call home. I miss your crazy as? So much every room I'm in my house there you are! I love you RIP

Lance was my next door neighbor. He had the best sense of humor. We spent a lot of time laughing. If he saw us working on a project he would always jump in to lend a hand...always, and could he build a boat! This world is going to be a lot colder without him in it...

“ Katie and Family: My heart goes out to you all. I remember the day that I married you and Lance....His passing will leave a void in your hearts, but you have to look at the positive that he is no longer in pain or suffering. As the days go by, the heartache will lessen, lean towards all your happy and good memories. They will get you through all of this. It may not seem so now, but it will. Losing someone so close to you makes you feel like life isn't worth living, but it is.... Keep his memory alive in your hearts. Its ok to talk about him as much as you want, don't let anyone tell you differently... It's been 20 years since I lost the love of my life and I talk of him often and think of him daily... No one can erase or take away the memories that you made together. Hold tight to them all because they will be with you forever and so will he.....
