“ As one of the youngest cousins in our family I was lucky to be able to grow up with my very own personal super heroes also known as "older cousins" and Lane was one of them. He always let me tag along and get in his way and he never complained when he probably should have because I was a brat. He made sure we all had a place in front of the TV to watch cartoons on Saturdays when we would be down to visit. He would take us horseback riding through all the trails and he just made us feel welcome each and every time, well except the time he thought my husband was a poacher which was hilarious for me but not so much at the time for Michael. It is always a shock when one of your childhood heroes passes and this one was no exception. I will miss his twang and his smile they were one of a kind.
