“ I never got the pleasure to meet my cousins oldest son, but I have watched him grow up on facebook over the last decade or so. It occurs to me that although he left this Earth much too soon, he lived a lot in his 19 years. I believe he was a child in the Philippines and got to experience another culture. He was a California kid for awhile and then became part of a large extended family in Florida. Finally he was blessed with being a Father, which from the photos looks like he was meant to do.

“ There are 1,000's, but one time on our hike to River Sink, Zane just starts telling us about how sacred the land was. He continued by explaining that his Dad owned the land and his Dad before that and his Dad before that, he just starts making up this funny story. He was always so off the cuff with his humor. Never a dull moment with Zane around! Rick and I always enjoyed his company .
