“ This woman gave birth to me 44 years ago and placed me for adoption. I have always known I was adopted and 14 years ago we started a relationship, shared our lives, both the good and the bad. I do not regret for one moment her choice all those years ago. We spoke on the phone and with letters. Mom, you hugged me for nine months and I know letting me go was hard. One day we will meet and I will hug you forever. I have had a great life and been raised by great parents. Please keep an eye on me and my family. Your son, David Lee.

I only knew Miss Zelda for a year and helped her with her funeral plots before Mr. Barron died. We talked on the phone a lot over the course of a couple of months, and I know how hard caregiving was on her. But, no matter how hard her day had been or her week, she was funny and full of laughter. She had a lot of spunk and reminded me of my own grandmother. I'm very glad you got to know her and I'm very glad I did, too. I wish she had had a longer time to enjoy life after Mr. Barron died. It's sad when the caretaker doesn't get much time before she dies, too.
